History of Regalia

The use of academic dress has deep historical roots stemming from the fourteenth century. Today's pageantry has developed along with the various customs associated with academic dress. In an academic procession, most of the participants wear an academic costume consisting of a cap, gown and hood, each symbolizing some aspect of the wearer's academic achievement.

Traditionally, the cap is a mortarboard with a black or gold tassel. Occasionally, the use of a soft tam by doctoral recipients is utilized.

Gowns are typically black and symbolize the degree attained by the individual. The bachelor's degree gown has pointed sleeves and is designed to be worn closed. The master's degree gown has an oblong sleeve with open wrist and base hanging down. The rear part of the sleeve is square cut, and the front has an arc cut-away. The gown is designed to be worn open or closed. Doctoral degree gowns have bell-shaped sleeves and are designed to be worn open or closed. The gown is faced down the front with velvet and has three chevrons of velvet on each sleeve. The gown color may be indicative of the institution's colors.

The hood represents the institution from which the wearer holds an advanced degree and also indicates the subject in which the degree is earned. Bachelor's hoods are three feet long, master's hoods are three and one-half feet long and doctoral hoods are four feet long. The hoods are lined with the official color or colors of the college or university conferring the degree. The trimming on the hood is made of velvet and is indicative of the subject in which the degree was earned.

Gold cords represent honors for graduation candidates with a cumulative GPA of 3.5 or higher. Gold stoles and tassels designate graduation candidates who are members of the Phi Theta Kappa International Honor Society. Red, white and blue cords represent active duty military and veteran graduation candidates. White cords designate graduation candidates who are earning an Associate Degree upon high school graduation. The asterisks shown below indicate academic honors of graduation candidates at the beginning of the semester in which that person applied for graduation.

Central Carolina Technical College shares in the well-deserved pride our graduates feel in their accomplishments. The list of candidates for graduation is prepared before final grades are reported. For that reason, names of students who may not meet graduation requirements may be included. Conversely, names of students who will later meet those requirements after publication may be omitted as well as those who have not yet applied for graduation. An official list of all 2021 graduates will be maintained by the Student Records Office once all courses and grading have been completed. Final certification of graduation requirements and honors will be made later.
